Ambassador of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) joins the Scalaria Air Challenge

Big events throw their shadows far ahead. For a photograph- and film-shooting, UNICEF-Ambassador Iren Dornier, grandson of the legendary aircraft-pioneer Claude Dornier, visited the Scalaria at the Wolfgangsee.

Dornier avails the Scalaria Air challenge, taking place from the 13th until the 15th of July 2007 on the Wolfgangsee, to promote his charity project for children. Besides supporting UNICEF, the Scalaria Air Challenge will also help another dedicated charity project: moments of hope (augenblicke der hoffnung), a fund raising project of ZIRM Privatklinik in order to help visually impaired and blind children is under the patronage of Austria's chancellor Dr. Alfred Gusenbauer, the federal minister of Health, Family and Youth, Dr. Andrea Kdolsky and the federal minister for Education, the Arts and Culture, Dr. Claudia Schmied. At the Scalaria Air Challenge, every single take-off aims to support "moments of hope".

This year, again, this event guarantees many other "highlights with a deeper meaning", quoting a journalist. Not only impressive waterplanes but also the most modern fire-fighting aircraft worldwide, the Russian Beriev, as an attraction worth seeing, can be held responsible for all these stunning moments.

International jet-set society are invited to the Scalaria, such as Placido Domingo, Thomas Gottschalk, Richard Branson, Niki Lauda, Karl Heinz Grasser and his wife Fiona Swarovski-Grasser, only to name some of them.
